

Camila Levy

Camila Levy is Brazilian and has lived in Madrid since 2013. She graduated in Agronomical Engineering (2006) and Specialization in Environmental Management (2010) from the University of São Paulo (ESALQ/USP).

She has a master's degree in Agriculture (2013) from Instituto Agronômico of Campinas-SP (Brazil) and a master's degree in Project Management (2016) from EAE Business School (Spain). Camila has more than 15 years of experience in Agronomy and the Environment, with an emphasis on Soil Fertility, Plant Nutrition and Biostimulation.

Currently, Global R&D Manager at Tradecorp International, working with innovative biostimulants and special fertilizers development aligned with business objectives; Direct and Indirect incentives, and European funded projects management; has a solid and well-established Global University and Research Centers network.