

Helene Reynaud

Master of Science at the University of Nice, her first position at Hello Nature was an internship. She has 25 years of experience, beginning in the laboratory and expanded to the management of 3 biostimulants production facilities (and probably more in the future). She has acquired a complete and in-depth knowledge of existing and developing products and processes in chemistry and biology applied to organic fertilizers, micro-organisms for agriculture, plant biostimulants and plant protection products.

4 years ago, she took up the role of R&D Director of Hello Nature USA and she moved, with her family, from France to the USA. She likes to say "I am a hybrid, half French, half Spanish": it made her creative, flexible, and open-minded. Her favorite sentence is: "I have to test".
